

2016-2017 ACLU-NJ Legislative Scorecard

OCTOBER 2017

We New Jerseyans have enormous influence on our legislators, and New Jersey plays an influential role on the national stage. From one of the first paid family leave insurance programs in the country in 2008 to shifting the criminal justice landscape with risk-based bail reform in 2014, the laws made in the Garden State are sometimes used as models by other states looking to enhance civil liberties.

Because our lawmakers have the power to shape our access to justice and civil liberties, it's incumbent upon us to hold our officials accountable, and that means taking account of their record. This scorecard tracks the voting records to date of Senate and Assembly members on 10 key issues during the legislative session that began Jan. 1, 2016, and will end Dec. 31 2017.

These bills reflect the ACLU of New Jersey's priorities this legislative session. Scores were developed by calculating each vote on one of 10 priority issues as a vote for or against civil liberties interests. Each bill carries equal weight. Absences were not included in the calculation, and casting a vote to abstain counted against the legislator.
